Further Changes In OPA Measure Urged by Porter

Barkley Is Not Sure If Senate Debate Will Start Today

By J. A. O'Leary

Price Administrator Paul Porter, asserting that his approval of the new Barkley profit formulas for industry is not a blanket indorsement of the OPA extension bill reported out by the Senate Banking Committee last night, called on Congress today to revise the measure still further to bring it into line with President Truman's recommen-

Meanwhile, with Senator Taft, Republican, of Ohio urging postponement until Monday of Senate debate on the revamped one-year revival of price control. Senator Barkley was not sure the measure would be taken up today. Leaders were waiting to see how many Senators are still out of town over the Fourth of July holiday period.

Propriety of Hearing Questioned. Mr. Porter ran into trouble from another source today. When he went to the Capitol to testify before mittee on the $106,650,000 budget for OPA for the new fiscal year, Senator Bridges, Republican, of New Hampshire questioned the propriety of the committee hearing the head of an agency which he argued does not
